

1. It is important to use the Tracking Skill to find out where I am in the resilient zone. I should practice focusing on each of my senses:

- Things I can see.
- Things I can hear.
- Things I can touch/feel.
- Things I can smell.
- Things I can taste.

2. When I am in the “high zone,” I feel...(choose all that apply)

- | | | |
|------------------|--------------------------|-------------------------|
| Hot | Tightness in my chest | Energetic |
| Sweaty | Tight muscles | Dizzy |
| Fast heart beat | Like I need the bathroom | Like I want to throw up |
| Faster breathing | Dry mouth | Confused |
| Hard to breathe | Restless | Distracted |

3. When I am in the “high zone,” I can use one of my skills to be resilient. Some of the skills that might help me are the Help Now! skills and the Grounding Skill.

4. Some of the Help Now! skills that I prefer are: (choose all that apply)

- | | |
|-------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| Stretching | Washing my hands with cold water |
| Going for a walk | Looking for 6 colors around the room |
| Doing push-ups against a wall | Counting backwards from 20 |
| Jumping up and down 10 times | Other: _____ |
| Drinking water | Other: _____ |

5. When I practice the Grounding Skill, I can focus on each of my senses just like I did when I was doing the Tracking Skill. When I use the Grounding Skill, I can stay focused on senses that feel comfortable or okay until I start to feel calm again.

6. When I am in the “low zone,” I feel...(choose all that apply)

Sad	Low Energy	Bored
Depressed	Hopeless	Like I want to hurt myself
Tired	Embarrassed	Hungrier than normal
Ashamed	Numb	Less hungry than normal
Distracted by problems	Like I want to be left alone	Don't want to do anything

7. When I am in the “low zone,” I can use one of my skills to be resilient. Some of the skills that might help me are the Resourcing and the Gesturing Skill.

8. When I use the Resourcing Skill, I can try using some of these resources...

- People that help me feel calm/better: _____
- Places that help me feel calm/better: _____
- Things that help me feel calm/better: _____
- Memories that help me feel calm/better: _____

9. When I use the Gesturing Skill, I can try using the following gestures:

Clapping	Other: _____
Jumping up and down	Other: _____
Sitting with my eyes closed	Other: _____

10. If I need extra help getting back into my resilient zone, I practice the Shift and Stay skill. I can use my other skills to shift my thoughts onto an okay or comfortable thought. Then I can try to stay with the thought by focusing on some extra details.
